Dear Director Freeh:

Speech Correspondence

On behalf of the officers and Board of Directors of the NMIA I wish to invite you to address the participants in our next symposium, Counterintelligence and OPSEC Solutions to Critical Threats to US Industry and National Infrastructure. We would be most pleased if you would provide your perspective on The Economic and Industrial Espionage Threat in conjunction with a presentation on The New National Industrial & Economic Espionage Law.

The session is related to a previous symposium on Information Warfare presented by NMIA for government and industry on ~~September 18, 1996~~ November. The audience at the counter intelligence symposium will be composed of approximately 150-200 senior and mid-level managers from government and industry, operators and security specialists who deal with threats posed by expanding industrial and economic espionage operations against US firms, both in this country and around the world. NMIA's objective is to provide useful information and potential solutions to critical threats to industry and to national infrastructure, including insights into the nature and cost of the threat and an overview of the means to mitigate, neutralize or counter such activity.

NMIA was founded in 1974 as a professional organization dedicated to the support of our nation's active intelligence establishment. We have approximately 3,000 members worldwide with 13 chapters in the United States, Europe and Korea. Members include military personnel, civilian employees of all of the country's intelligence organizations, the military services and many of the unified commands. This symposium will be sponsored by the National Military Intelligence Association (NMIA) and the Operations Security Professional Society as part of our annual series on topics of interest to the Intelligence Community. It will be held on November 18, 1996 at the BDM Conference Center, Tyson's Corner, VA and a copy of the agenda is attached.

Dear General [redacted]

Thank you for the invitation to participate in the National Military Intelligence Association's symposium on "Counterintelligence and OPSEC Solutions to Critical Threats to U.S. Industry and National Infrastructure" on November 18th.

Unfortunately, I will not be able to attend. Because of the press of business, I have had to make a policy of severely restricting my speaking engagements. I am pleased, however, that Mr. [redacted] Chief of the FBI's Critical Infrastructure and Threat Assessment Center, will be taking part in your symposium.

Again, I appreciate the invitation, and I wish you a very successful program.

Sincerely yours,

Louis J. Freeh
